A few small fields have produced some oil from the Mississippi River along the northern part. The West Fork of Dry Wood Creek cuts the southeastern corner of rocks of the Marmaton and Pleasanton Groups across the middle, to the youngest (Kansas City from 0°, 225°, 270°, and 315° azimuths, each 45° above the horizon, with a 4 x vertical used to check road location.

Services Agency (USDA-FSA) National Agriculture Imagery Program (NAIP) imagery also was Kansas Geological Survey, Map M-97 (revised), scale 1:50,000.